Lloyd Reynolds Awarded Governor General's Medal

Chauvin school may well take pride in the honor conferred upon it by the award of the Governor-General's bronze medal to Lloyd Reynolds, as will be seen from the following letter:

Edmonton, October 2nd 1923.
Sir:

I have the pleasure to enclose a Bronze Medal, donated by His Excellency Lord Bess, Governor General of Canada and awarded to you as the candidate receiving the highest marks in the Wainwright Inspectorate at the Public School Leaving Examination in June, 1923.

I should be pleased if you would forward to this Department an acknowledgement of this medal in your own handwriting, as it is desirable that the acknowledgements be sent to the Governor General.

An early reply will be greatly appreciated.

Your obedient servant

H. J. SPICER,

Registrar.

Mr. Lloyd G. Reynolds,
Chauvin, Alberta.

The medal has been received, and is a splendid bronze medal of considerable size and weight. On the face appears the superscription "His Excellency the Governor General and Lady Bing of Vimy" surrounding their profiles; and on the reverse appears the coat of arms with motto "DIEBUIR."

Chauvin School Fair

Chauvin School Fair was held in the Agricultural Buildings on Sept 25th. Night schools entered the competition. The judges were enchanted with Art Exhibits. Inspector Nelson credited the schools and especially St. Aubin for their rapid and excellent progress; also numerous display in all lines of Exhibits. Over 110 prizes were awarded to St. Aubin's School.

The proceedings opened with a parade in which the different Schools participated. The popular Martin Children's Juvenile Entertainers of Ed. 42.30 by the St. Aubin school, after which all proceeded to Fair Grounds to join other schools participating in procession. The St. Aubin School presented the finest parade ever seen in Chauvin for which they were given first prize. Every one of the 28 pupils were brilliantly attired. Each costume had its own representation. The Indian Chief and his squaw were remarkable by all. Father Huert and Dr. St. Jean, chairman of the school took part in the parade with their tasty and dainty decorated cars. The vehicles were also of great interest to spectators. One represented ancient days and the other Japanese styles antiques. The Irish and French costumes added a great deal to attractiveness and effects of procession. The military costumes also looked remarkably well on the wearers.

That day was the day of days for all children and parents. Everyone too can active part in the sports, winning several prizes and afterwards departed with light and contented hearts.—Contributed

The Adventures of the Scottish Harvesters

BY THOMAS W. CAMPBELL

It was nearing midnight when a band of happy harvesters arrived at Ribstone, having travelled all the way from the Old Country. They had read the innumerable books about the Great Prairie, about the adventurous times of the prairie pioneers, about the riyings of the Indians when they were a marauding people. They had seen in the luxurious picture palaces of European cities scenes which depicted Western life and Western customs. It was, therefore, with a strange thrill in their beings, and an inexpressible feeling of wonderful events about to happen that they set foot in the Great Alberta Prairies. These men had raised the curtain on the crisis scene of their lives, and the new act in life's stage was about to commence. With laughter in their eyes, and expectancy in their hearts, the new harvesters met the station agent at Ribstone.

"Well you guys," drawled the voice of the agent with the juvenile face, "I guess you can sleep in the waiting room tonight." We thanked him handsomely, and told him that we would accept his offer, after we had discovered some place to dine.

We moved off in the direction of the town. As we journeyed along, each man chattering after the manner of his prehistoric forefathers, a strange personage broke in upon our presence.

"Do any of you want fixin' up for the harvest field?" asked the queer individual.

We turned and confronted him. He was a man of medium size. His features were completely hidden by a considerable growth of unkempt hair, which lay in no particular direction all over his face. On a first glance we concluded that this was one of the prairie boys who had been with the household article known as soap. His coat consisted of some sort of blanket material of varied hues and shades, which, as we convinced, the artists of great repute had no idea existed. The footwear consisted of some sort of combination which included leather and canvas, but they had neither shape, form, nor beauty. The only part of his person which appeared familiar to us was his trousers, and we concluded that these must have been picked up from some passing tourist from the Eastern Hemisphere.

Now this description of the first Albertan farmer that we met, may appear impudent and uncomplimentary, but it was our first impression and I shall have something totally different to say later in this paper when I come to my general impression of the Alberta farmer.

We arrived at the village of Ribstone proper, which is really a small hamlet with one street and about seven wooden shacks. Prosperity seemed to be written on all of these shacks, at any rate, judging by the jovial spirits who inhabited them, they evidently are care-free.

As we looked about for a place to dine, we were approached by three men, one of whom was the local barber.

He addressed us.

"Well boys, are you from the Old Country?"

"Yes," we answered in unison.

"I guess you'll be wanting something to eat?"

"Yes, we guess right, sir."

"Well then boys, well waken up the Chink, said the barber.

The three villagers knocked at the door of a fair sized shack, and at the same time shouted "Jim, Jim, here are some boys who want supper."

"Oh O!," cried the slipper. A moose, a yellow-faced son of the Orient made his appearance and beckoned us within. "Jim" was a small Chinaman with a face like a train-ammish. When we had studied his features carefully and minutely, we decided to call him "Hoe Flung Dung."

When we had completed devouring our "Dead Fly Pie," we adjourned to our sleeping quarters so kindly granted by the station agent. The floor of the waiting room housed the most of us, and we laid ourselves down very gently, lest we should damage the springs which we tried to imagine were there. We slept with only one interruption, and that was caused through one of our boys falling off the narrow form which he had chosen for his bed. With a string of un-lavful words, he picked himself up and was assisted hurriedly into his bed by a number of boots, socks, and hats contributed to his discomfort by his disturbed companions. caused

OUR FIRST DAY AT RIBSTONE.

When we awoke in the morning, the sun was high in the heavens. We arose to the accompaniment of many groans, for verily the floor was hard, and our haunches ached pitifully. We bought some provisions, cooked our own meals, and generally engaged in "alfresco frolics" until the farmers appeared who desired help. In a few hours we were all fixed up, and we took our departure for our respective farms. I went with an Edinburg companion to a farm some miles north of Ribstone. It was almost midnight when we arrived, and we were immediately shown to our sleeping quarters. A place which they called a caboose. We did not like the look of this mansion house, so we resolved to explore around for a more civilized place to lay our weary bodies. As we left the caboose we passed close to a tall post which was erected close to a barn-house. It was a moonlight night, and the stillness of death seemed to pervade the place. A badger's head lay in front of us, and its lifeless eyes gazed fixedly upon us, causing a cold shiver to run up and down our spines. The white blanched bones of various creatures were lying everywhere around us, and it seemed to us that we were walking within the shadow of the Valley of Death. There was a weird uncanny stillness in the atmosphere, and we felt that something terrible might happen at any moment.

"Look!" cried my companion.

"What is that?" I shivered and looked in the direction of the pointed finger. There on the top of the erected post was a huge creature silhouetted against the moonlit sky.

"What is it?" I whispered.

"An hawk," answered my companion in subdued voice.

We had read of the frocity of owls and we trembled.

"It is a culture," I suggested tremulously.

"Waiting for our flesh" breathed my companion.

"Should we waken the boss?" I queried my friend.

"I think it would be wise," said I.

We crept closer and closer, armed with cudgels, ready to slay if we were attacked. Closer and closer we crept, our breath was now coming in gasps, and at last we were able to distinguish clearly the form of our adversary. It was a turkey having a sleep.

We crept back to bed, and fell asleep with the laughter tears on our cheeks.

THE FIRST DAY'S STOOKING

"Boys get up," called a voice.

We rubbed our eyes. It seemed as though we had closed them only a Little Girl Burned To Death: Brothers Played With Matches

We regret to record the untimely death of Annie Elsie, aged 2 years and 3 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tizzard, Tuesday, Oct. 2.

Mr. Tizzard who that morning had gone to join a threshing outfit, had three of his children (one of whom was the little Annie) for a short ride on his way. When a short distance from the house he put them off and sent them home. On arriving home the mother gave the children each a biscuit which they took out and set outdoors climbing on the top of the barn which was not very high. Unknown to Mrs. Tizzard one of the boys had taken out some matches, with which the children started a fire on top of the barn, which was soon in flames along with the house.

On seeing the flames Mrs. Tizzard went as quickly as possible to the barn where she found the charred remains of her little daughter lying.

The neighbours took no time in reaching the scene of the fire and rendering aid the assistance they could to get the fire under control before it reached the house, which they succeeded in doing; but not before all the outbuildings, harness, and all the hay and oat sheaves, and a young calf had been totally destroyed.

The real western Canadian spirit and nobility shown by the splendid help and sympathy shown by all who helped so willingly to relieve the bereaved family.

The funeral took place on Wednesday October 3rd. The service which was held in the home was conducted by Rev. Mitchellson who preached a helpful and comforting sermon, taking for his text 1 Thessalonians 4:10, those words.

The preacher said in effect "This chapter speaks among many things of the glorious reunion that will yet take place. Christ had gone before us to prepare a home in our Father's house. Home does not comprise a lonely house with artistic furniture. Home is where a mother's love is exhibited filling the home with laughter. Heaven is where God's love is expressed through the death and resurrection of His Son and our Saviour and filled his people with the joy of redeeming grace. The galleries of heaven are filled with glorified spectators watching us as a great cloud of witnesses.

A number of friends and relatives followed the remains to Ribstone cemetery where the interment took place. A short service was held at the grave and the beautiful hymn "There is a Happy Land" was sung.

Beside the father and mother there are five children left to mourn the loss of daughter and sister.

Tributes of flowers were sent by Mrs. Alken, Mrs. Pimman and others.

Much sympathy was expressed for the bereaved parents.

It would not be out of place for the minister to thank all friends who have or may contribute their kindness to Mr. and Mrs. George Tizzard.

Good wishes if you need them: good advice if you don't. Consult C. C. McKechnie if you have printed notices, notices, or if you are troubled seeing to read, sew, knit, etc., C. C. McKechnie Graduate Optician, Chauvin few minutes ago.

Adventures Of The Scottish Harvesters

"It must be a dream," we thought. "Boys get up," repeated the voice. We rubbed our eyes again but the owls were on strike as they refused to perform their duties.

"Boys get up" bellowed the voice. By a tremendous exertion of will power we arose, washed, and sat down to breakfast. The meal seemed to pass almost as quickly as our night's sleep, and in a few minutes we were in the harvest field.

There were binders in the field and a little man of uncertain age was sent to assist us to stook. Nobody told us how to do the work so we went on our own sweet way. I held up one bundle while George Swan, my companion, built one on each side to prevent it from falling, and so we went along until we had three rows completed. Then we observed that all our stooks had been built wrong side up and we had to commence all over again. The wee man was forging ahead of us so we knocked down some of his stooks and shouted to him that his stooks were falling to pieces. By puz, means we managed to hold our own with the experienced workman. Dinner time approached and we practically crawled over to the house. Our heads seemed to swim, we felt as if our kidneys had disappeared and left an aching void. We thought our lungs had burst, while our hands were blistered and torn.

"And they call this God's Own Country," muttered my friend. We satisfied our temporal wants, and returned to what we thought was our field of labour. We worked for awhile and then observed the binders at work in another field. We thought it was a trick of the Devil when we learned that we had stoked in another man's field. The afternoon wore on, the sun grew hotter, and we grew more painful. We sat down behind some stooks to rest our weary limbs, and to empty our shoes of an acre of soil. Then we worked for a while.

After a time we lay down behind some stooks to repair our broken backs, then we worked again.

"If Hell is anything like this," I said, "then I'm turning over a new leaf at once."

"You know Tom" said George with the tone of a philosopher "I believe that Hell is here on the earth."

I agreed because I felt it to be true. We must work up some subterfuge for a rest" breathed my agonized companion.

"Leave it to me," said I.

Now two of the gents on the binders were sons of the farmer with whom we were employed, and in the course of conversation at the dinner table I learned that they were not in favour of the Wheat Pool, so, when the binder came round again, I approached the elder son with those words "I think it a great pity that you are not in the Pool." We discussed the subject and thereby gained forty-five minutes respite from our labours.

Supper time came and passed, and we again entered the caboose.

"What are we going to do?" asked George.

"Chuck it," said I "what do you say?"

"Chuck it," said he. We agreed to leave our grips to be called for at some future time and we left for Ribstone.

We wanted for many miles and we were footsore and tired almost to death. I stopped suddenly and said to my companion

"George, we are on the wrong track. There are no telegraph poles on this road."

"My God," he replied, "we are lost on the prairie."

We had heard of coyotes and badgers and other wild prairie animals, and we were afraid to sleep in the open, lest we might be attacked. We sat down to rest awhile. The night was cold and still, the silence was broken only by the sound of the trees as they swayed and kissed one another in the evening breeze. We scanned every shade and crevice, lest they might be lurking there, some unknown monster of the prairie that would devour us.

EAT FISHER'S CHAUVIN BREAD

We arose and continued our journey and we came to a home made estate.

"Let us follow this track and ask directions," said George. I pulled back the bar that kept the gate closed, but the darned gate swung rapidly outwards and hit me on the head. We house, and found it closed. Again the weary travellers lay down upon their backs and gazed into the blue heights of the heavens. We watched the clouds brilliantly illuminated by the moon's rays, go careering across the limitless space, to linger or rest perhaps over the mountains and glens of our beloved Scotland. We arose again and on reaching the gate of my previous disaster crawled underneath rather than risk another blow. We crawled to the other side of the road and again rested. In a few moments the tormenting discovery was made that we were sitting on an ants nest. Up our trousers, in our shirts, and down our sleeves these pests played at hide and seek.

"Listen" said my chum.

"What is it?" I asked.

"The sound of a motor."

I listened and agreed. We ran as fast as our worried legs would carry us for about half a mile, and then we stopped exhausted. Our disappointment was tremendous when we learned that the sound we thought was a motor car, was only the sound associated with telegraph poles. We continued our walk and an hour or so afterward a building came into view.

"Let's crawl in there and rest" said George "anything is better than the cold caboose." We arrived at the building and judge of our surprise when we recognized the old caboose we had hoped never to see again. We had walked over a large square and entered the grounds of our employer from the opposite direction of that from which we started.

THRESHING

Bobby Atkinson, Donald Martin, George Swan and I were all engaged by the American farmer some miles north of Ribstone for his threshing outfit. We arrived at his domicile somewhere about one o'clock in the morning. We at once went into bed and fell into a sound, peaceful sleep. Shortly afterwards a voice was heard calling:

"Boys, boys, come on, it's nearly daylight."

"What?" someone shouted. "It's nearly daylight," repeated the father.

"That's good old bird, thanks very much," I said, and we all got under the clothes again, wondering at the same time why he should bother getting out of his bed to inform us that it was nearly daylight.

A few nervous moments passed.

"Boys, boys—" "Go away back to bed you scurffy rat, and don't annoy us," shouted George.

"We were convinced our farmer was potty."

"Are you going to get up," asked the voice plaintively "we must start threshing."

It began to dawn upon us that the old boulder warning us for work. We began to realize what threshing meant. We arose with much unpalatable language, and after breakfast journeyed to the field of operations. Bobby and I rode bareback, and we felt rather groggy as we had never before been on board a nag's bones. The horses started to trot and Bobby fell off. I also tried to get off, but I took cramp in the leg and had to be lifted. We walked over after. I was given the job of field pitcher, while the others had teams. On the evening of the second day, my friend George was pitching into the separator to the tune of a well known ditty when the pitchfork slid into the separator. It got broken into bits and a red hot spark emanating from the blower, set the straw pile alight. It made quite a warm evening, and we were kept hard at work to save the granary from the flames.

The third day passed off serenely, but the fourth day had scarcely commenced when Donald had to be extirpated from beneath his wagon. On the fifth day George fell on the belt and was landed off at the engine. It took him about a millionth part of a second to do the journey. On the sixth day, Bobby thinking he was signing on a solid foundation, stepped onto some sheaves that were hanging over the side of his wagon, and fell into the separator. I went to the blower to catch him coming out, but he just managed to save himself from execution. On the eighth day George upset his wagon, and I was given a team. Whenever I got out to the field my horses ran away, and broke some of the binder wires that held the harness together. On attempting to pass out from the separator I knocked lumps off the granary and on the ninth day we left.

So ended the adventures of the Scottish harvesters at Ribstone.

GENERAL IMPRESSIONS OF

ALBERTIAN FARMING

I can now perfectly understand why the Alberta farmer may look a little wild. He must work. In these prairie lands there is no time to think of fashions and fads, and it is better so. In the prairie a man is not a slave to style and conventionalities, and therein lies the glorious freedom of the West. I have learned that behind the rough exterior of the prairie farmer there lies qualities and characteristics that would shame some of the financiers and city men, who are enriched through the hard graft of the worker of the soil.

In the wooden shacks of the West the farmer lives. In the hot boiling sun he works. He sees the sun rise and he sees it set. In the cold frozen fall he draws his grain, and while he tolls and works, some rich guys sit in their offices which are ventilated palaces and clutch the profits.

There can be no improvement for the Canadian farmer until a weeding out process begins in the cities of the world. The wheat gambler must be uprooted, or the soil will show no profit to the farmer. It is an immoral practice to gamble with the food of nations. Farmers will increase as gamblers decrease.

My advice to the farmer is this. When next year arrives, and the opportunity is given, sign up with the Wheat Pool, and to Hell with the men who rob you of your earnings, and who increase the price of bread to the starving millions of other lands.

Editorial Comment

INTOLERANCE IS A CURSE

Intolerance is a curse.

This western country is particularly fortunate in being free from the larger political and sectarian forms of intolerance to a remarkable extent. This wide open country has never known the more malignant forms of intolerance, and there is something about its vastness that discourages the growth of the evil of intolerance. But we are not yet entirely free from this curse, as will be seen from the editorial, reproduced below, from the Lloydminster Times:—

"We have never claimed to run a religious magazine, nor a prohibition sheet—we aspire only to conduct a clean and useful weekly newspaper. Because we have a profound respect for religion, we gladly publish—with out cost—the list of services for the different churches in town. As for prohibition we have held it for over 40 years—and make no secret of it. Yet we are called into question for daring to print an advt. for the Moderation League asking the community to sign the moderation petition.

"We claim that the Moderation League have as much right to ask voters to support them as the prohibitionists have to ask them not to. Our columns are open to all legitimate advertising—and rightly or wrongly, we considered the advt. in question to be a legitimate one; but one of our readers has cancelled his subscription in consequence. He phoned us in high dudgeon for daring to run our own business in our own way.

"It is generally known that we had a partner up to three years ago. During the war we had a difference with him on the matter of publishing liquor adverts, and declined to be a party to the same. Later on we announced the fact that we would in future publish no more such adverts.

"One valued supporter called on us and cancelled his subscription, stating he would not support a paper that was so narrow. So there you are—we are between the devil and the deep sea. We are not discriminating which is which. This worthy old gent, however, came along about two years afterwards and paid up again.

"We regret to lose a subscriber, but at the same time we beg to be allowed to run the Times as we think best. We have not been to our old friend's farm and told him he should not grow barley; for if he does he is indirectly supporting the liquor traffic. We suppose if he kept a bakery or a grocery store in town, he would refuse to sell a Moderation League agent bread. Where would he draw the line?

"The spirit displayed seems to me, of that ugly word we heard of so often years ago—'Boycott.' Some people's religion, when it is bottled down, simply means intolerance. They are as intolerant as the inquisition. Possibly some other crank will be 'calling' us for running the Empress Theatre adverts; and more than likely the merchants in town will object to the Co-op advt.—and vice versa. Some rook old folks think the ball-room highway to perdition—so we shall have to cut out the notices of dances here and there. Others have a horror of tobacco and consider a smoker is only fying-up a little previously, for all smokers will inevitably go to hell; so out comes the tobaccoists advt. Whilst yet there are more who think that tea and coffee are more injurious than spirits and liquors—so out the grocers' adverts. Enough, ad nauseam. The Times is like the moon that the little barked at—it keeps on shining."—Lloydminster Times.

INTOLERANCE DESTROYS COMMUNITY FEELING

The experience of our friend at Lloydminster is being shared to a greater and less degree by other editors of rural weekly newspapers. Very few of these men have escaped the experience of forfeiting the support and friendship of such intolerant people. The great pity of it is that this intolerance is most frequently but a weak point in what otherwise is great moral strength. We mean that very frequently those who hold high ideals with great tenacity are apt in the warmth of their fervour to seek to annihilate views contrary to their own—this desire taking the form of reprisals more or less unjust.

Having been acquainted with our good friend, the editor of the Lloydminster Times for a quarter of a century, having worked with him both in England and Canada, we are intimately acquainted with him. And knowing the strong temperance views he has held since young manhood, we know that his insertion of Moderation League advertisements is the truest sign of his broad-mindedness. But to leave the personal side of the issue, we have to give consideration to the wider aspect of the matter, and therein lay the real seriousness of the question—it's reflex on the public life of Canada.

INTOLERANCE DESTROYS FREEDOM OF PRESS

It is to be remembered that the press is to a large extent in the hands of political parties and those having large interests. Only in the rural field can we expect to find that freedom of the press which is able to express the feelings and thoughts of the ordinary citizen. The rural weekly press is the last thin red line of freedom of public expression, and that is badly bent in places.

For this very reason readers of the local paper should, and for the most part do, give their effort the greatest latitude in his editor to interpret the thoughts of his community and express them to the world. Don't bind him with a heavy chain of non-support and animosity because he expresses other views than your own particular one. On the other hand, take advantage of the personal element of acquaintanceship by presenting your views in such a form that they may be published, and in this manner build up the real freedom of the press.

The only light reading that encourages serious thought is the electric bill.

Rev. W. MacKenzie Begins Ministry In Chauvin Field

Rev. and Mrs. William MacKenzie arrived in Chauvin last Saturday, and have commenced their ministry in the Chauvin mission field. Rev. MacKenzie has had thirteen years experience in this work, having ministered in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia. He comes to us from Riverside, N.S. Mrs. MacKenzie is an experienced community and girls' society worker. It is interesting to note that Mr. MacKenzie on his first rounds of making acquaintanceship discovered that Mrs. H. N. Freeman and himself were second cousins.

Leaholme U.F.A. & W.A. Annual Dinner

The annual Leaholme U.F.A. and W.A. dinner will be held at the schoolhouse on Friday, November 2. It is hoped that everybody will keep this date in mind and make an effort to attend.

Most people nowadays believe in popular Government, but when was a Government really popular?

If a man is always outsooping you wish your hands off him.

Of the many different brands why do they prefer this one?

They are made-to-measure!

It is quite logical that clothing will not render a service of greater degree than the quality of the materials and labor involved in its making will withstand.

Men who have worn Lisle's Trimble Clothes know that they represent the best value—what every man in his construction embodies safety, honest workmanship and pure woolen fabrics. Their design is obviously in good taste and in every instance they fit well because they are tailored to the individual type of the wearer.

It is small wonder, why, from among the many, discerning dressers make this "one" their choice today and see the character of the fabrics we are showing for Fall and Winter wear.

Harvesters To Give Benefit Concert At
Ribstone, Sat. Oct. 20

The Scottish harvesters at Ribstone are giving a grand concert on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. George Tizzard who last week suffered the loss of their little daughter, the child being burned to death by a fire which was started by one of her small brothers. The fire destroyed the barn and all out-buildings and all winter feed.

The concert will take place on Saturday, October 19th, at the Curling Rink, Ribstone and will commence at 8.20 p.m. You are asked to attend this concert and by your contribution help the bereaved family..

Visitor: "How old are you, Marie?"
Maggie: "I'm five, and mother says if I'm good en' eat lots of oatmeal I'll be six next birthday."

GIVE YOUR RED CROSS
A BUSHEL OF GRAIN

IN the midst if your plenty this year, do not forget your Red Cross, which needs your membership and needs your subscription. The annual drive for membership and finance starts this week. Your Red Cross should ready to help you in your need--now it is your turn.

HERE IS THE PLAN!
WILL YOU DO YOUR BIT

YOU will never miss a few bushels of grain; when you haul your next load to the elevator just tell the elevator man that you wish to donate some grain to the RED CROSS. He will give you a cheque immediately for the cash value of the number of bushels you wish to give. In addition to this he will add five cents per bushel as a donation of the elevator company to the Red Cross. You endorse the cheque payable to The Red Cross and hand it back to him; he will then send it to PROVINCIAL RED CROSS HEADQUARTERS, and you will receive an acknowledgement in the form of a membership certificate and button direct from us.

It is estimated that if each farmer with 1/4 section gives 2 bushels, with 1/2 section gives 5 bushels
THAT, with cash donations from the towns and cities, the Alberta Division quota of $55,000 will be reached easily. This plan has the endorsement and recommendation of

The Lieut-Governor of the Province,
The Committee of The Alberta Wheat Pool
The Alberta Elevator Companies

YOUR RED CROSS calls upon you again in the name of suffering humanity to give from your plenty for the benefit of those less fortunate. 82 per cent of all monies collected will be sent on RED CROSS ACTIVITIES IN THE PROVINCE OF ALBERTA, such as rural hospitals nursing service, etc. 18 per cent will be Alberta's share for Japanese Disaster Relief.

DO YOUR BIT AND DO IT NOW

CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

If you prefer to make your donation in cash, mail your cheque to:

Fall Garden Notes

BY A LOCAL GARDENER

Annual plants—Pans, beans, tomatoes, squash etc. After the vines have died down are a harbour for insect pests, and along with other garden refuse should be gathered into heaps ready for burning when thoroughly dry.

Rhubarb—If the ground is dry, and plenty of water is available, rhubarb roots ought to get a good soaking before freezing, they will make a more vigorous growth in the spring and be less likely to run to seed. As soon as the ground is frozen mulch to a depth of six inches with manure.

A thorough watering is beneficial to all trees, bushes or perennial plants just before freeze up.

Strawberry plants—If the situation is wintry-swept place brush so as to collect snow over the plants. As soon as the ground is frozen mulch with a layer of short manure or straw to a depth of about six inches, which should not be removed until growth has started in the spring.

Raspberries—As next years fruit is borne on this year's wood: to prevent it from being damaged by severe frost, bend the canes down to the ground without breaking, in line with the row and cover with enough earth to keep them down. Later cover with straw or manure, which should be removed before growth starts in spring.

Current Bushes—Mulch heavily with manure, and later when there is a good depth of snow, add another layer of manure which will greatly help delay the blossom in spring.

Mermald Hair Nets—real human hair—are almost invisible and keep the hair in nice shape after being combed. The hair is put through a sterilizing process before being made up. This process is carried out in England and the hair is then sent direct to China were the nets are made up. They are then brought back to Canada and we sell them at 2 for 25c any shade to match your hair.

PROHIBITIONISTS CONVICTED OF INSINCERITY

"There is not now 5 per cent of the citizens who would vote to bring back the open bar."

(Quotation from pamphlet, Nola, Social Service Council of Alberta, Jan. 1st 1914.)

What are they saying now?

"Clause 'D' means the Return of the Bar

LET THEM ANSWER THESE TWO QUESTIONS

1 Do they suppose the Moderation League of Alberta would waste time and energy working for a proposition that couldn't command 5 per cent of the electorate?

2 Do they suppose that a Government, dependant on the people's vote for support, would be likely, because of certain peculiarities in the ballot, to attempt to bring in a system which does not command 5 per cent of the electorate?

They know, and we know, and you know, that the return of the bar is as dead as old King Tut, but in desperation they are trying to resurrect the corpse.

VOTE 1 OPPOSITE 'CLAUSE 'D' on November 5th.

Increase In Use

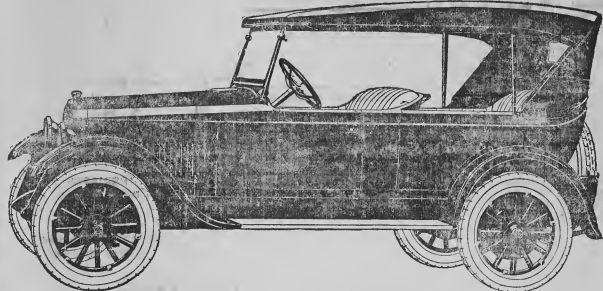

Of Separators

Indication of a considerable increase in the number of threshing machines being used this season in the province in comparison with last year, is given in the number of operators receiving licenses. To date approximately 4,000 licenses have been issued, in comparison with 3,700 last

STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX

The STUDEBAKER LIGHT SIX was designed by Studebaker engineers and is manufactured complete in Studebaker's own plants which are notable in design, size and equipment for efficient and economical manufacture.

STUDEBAKER factories, in cost and size, are the second largest of the world's automobile plants. They employ 24,000 people.

A more vivid idea of the magnitude of these plant facilities will be gained by the huge investments involved in single manufacturing departments. For instance, the Light-Six engine plant cost $4,000,000 which alone is more than the total assets of many automobile companies. Light-Six machine shops cost $7,000,000; the stamping plant $4,000,000; power plants $2,500,000. The new foundries will cost over $2,000,000.

Studebaker is the second strongest financially of the automobile manufacturers of the world.

These facts show why it is possible for Studebaker to produce the Light-Six—a truly remarkable car—and sell it for less than $1,500. No prospective buyer of an automobile should decide on anything until he has seen and driven the Light-Six. It is an achievement based upon Studebaker's 71 years of manufacturing experience.

Keen Interest In

Alberta Seed Grain

As a result of the co-operative marketing service and seed grain cleaning plant established last year by the provincial Department of Agriculture, a very keen interest has been developed in Alberta's seed wheat in Eastern Canada and the United States. More than 600 prospective buyers of this seed grain are now on the lists of the Department and inquiries concerning the seed are being received every day. Some of the most recent inquiries come from Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota and North Dakota. An interesting experiment is being conducted between Marcus and Ruby wheat on the points of comparative resistance to rust, maturity and yield.

Shipments of seed grain from inspected fields will commence arriving at the provincial plant at Edmonton shortly for cleaning. Applications from seed growers to send seed to the plant are now being received until October 12, after which applications will not be received, if the limit of the capacity of the plant has been reached.

Grain Exhibits For Chicago

Assembling of grain exhibits from farmers of the province, who intend to enter at the International Hay and Grain Show in Chicago in December, will commence shortly. There will be three assembling points at the schools of agriculture at Charlevoix and Olds and the University at Edmonton. From these assembling points the provincial Department of Agriculture is arranging to pay the freight on exhibits to Chicago.

Sugar Cane In Alberta

Bert Keyes, who came to Vermilion from the States last year, and settled on a section of land in that district, brought with him some sugar cane seed which he sowed on June 1st this year. When the Star's correspondent saw it on September 10, the cane had grown over six feet high and many who had never before seen sugar cane growing mistook the crop for Indian corn. It makes fine ensilage, to be preferred to either sunflowers or corn. Corn has been grown extensively in the Vermilion district this year.—Saskatoon Star.

Knox Ladies Aid

The Ladies Aid of Knox Union Church will hold their annual Fowl Supper and Bazaar in the church on October 12th. Supper will be served in the basement from 5.30 o'clock. Special music will be given during the evening. Any donations for the bazaar will be gladly accepted, and may be left at Dell's store. Admission Adult, 50c. Children under 12 years 25c.

Here and There

The total quantity of sea fish landed on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts during the month of June was $22,042 cwt., valued at $2,771,440 to the fishermen, compared with a catch of 872,282 cwt., valued at $2,596,730 in July, 1922.

Cattle in north Alberta's livestock herds now number more than 2,000,000. This industry and the Canadian swine industry have increased amazingly in the northern part of the Province in the last few years.

Carrying large consignments from the Dominion Government and the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Red Cross, the Canadian Pacific S.S. Empress of Russia was the first ship from the American continent to arrive with relief for the earthquake and famine stricken people of Japan.

Nearly $10,000 in fur royalties was collected in The Peace River by the chief game warden last winter. This does not include the royalties collected from the Hudson's Bay Company and Revillon Freres, which will more than double this amount. This does not include monies secured through taxes, licenses and other sources of revenue.

Creamery butter made in Alberta took a total of 149 prizes out of 236 prizes offered, or 63 per cent., at exhibitions at Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Brandon, Saskatoon and Vancouver this year. Out of 11 open championships offered, Alberta butter took 8. In the Calgary exhibition six provinces competed, in three others four provinces competed, and in two others three provinces competed.

British Columbia has reached the peak of the biggest tourist season in her history, and it is estimated that as a result of the enormous travel and the expenditure of transients while in the province this summer, will be worth at least $30,000,000. The opening of the Banff-Windermere motor highway through the Rockies, rock country, was largely responsible for this increase in tourist traffic through the Pacific province.

Gold producers in the Province of Ontario during the first six months of 1923 report production of 336,446 ounces gold and 65,444 ounces silver, of a total value of $7,244,681 shipped by the Porcupine producers and from the Kirkland Lake producers 69,691 ounces gold and 6,515 ounces silver, of a total value of $1,402,873, or from the two camps a total value of $8,646,954.

The Canadian Pacific Railway will contribute $25,000 for the relief of the sufferers in Japan and have also decided that supplies of Canadian food-stuffs and clothing donated, or purchased with money donated for relief work, will be transported free over the Company's rail and steamship lines. President E. W. Beatty made this announcement while making a tour over the Company's lines in the West with a party of directors. He added that this action had been taken because of the reports of the intense hardships due to the disaster, and notwithstanding the fact that the Company had lost heavily by the catastrophe.

The following editorial recently appeared in the Windsor "Border Cities Star": A recent cargo of silk, en route from China to New York, was shipped via Vancouver and the Canadian Pacific Railroad and crossed St. Lawrence to Ogdenburg, New York, instead of being sent across the United States from San Francisco. The incident offers something for Canadians to think about.

It proves what a splendid service the Canadian Pacific offers in its rail and steamship lines. In a country like Canada, transportation is all essential, and the way the Canadian Pacific has carried on in spite of the business difficulties which began with the war and are not yet smoothed out, is a credit to the nation which conceived it.

Again, the incident calls attention to Canada's splendid gateway to the East. Although China is in a chaotic political condition just now, the huge Oriental nation offers wonderful trade chances in the future. No nation is better placed for getting its share of this business than Canada.

SERVED HIM RIGHT

The train was just off, and Jeannie was congratulating herself on the prospect of having a compartment to herself, when a smartly-dressed man rushed on to the platform and sprang into her carriage, not a moment too soon.

"Just did it, after all," he muttered, as he flung himself into a corner seat, and prepared to enjoy the evening paper.

Jeannie leaned forward. "Tia sorry, sir," she said, "but—" "I never listen to beggars!" said the smartly-dressed one, curtly.

"But, sir—" "If you attempt to address me again I shall report you to the guard!" he snaped.

Jeannie said no more.

In due course the train stopped at Killbuck and Jeannie prepared to alight.

"I'm duna care if ye report me or no," she said shyly, "but I mean be having that pun o'butter ye're been sitting on for the last six miles!"

G.W.V.A. Notes

The Great War Veterans' Association of Canada (Inc.) have a clear conception of their duty in preserving the memory and records of those who suffered and died for the nation. Their "Names liveth for Evermore" and the G.W.V.A. urges all citizens of this country to wear the poppy emblem on days set apart for the commemoration of victories attained and peace gained by those who served in the Great War.

Each branch of the Association should serve as a distributing center and it is to be hoped that all public organizations possessing a patriotic spirit will co-operate in the National Campaign, which forms part of a great international movement to-day. Profits—above cost price—derived from the sale of poppies will be retained by the local organization undertaking the work, for the alleviation of distress among the sick and needy who are in your midst.

Knox Ladies Aid

The annual Bazaar and Fowl Supper given by the Ladies Aid of Knox church Ribstone will be held Friday October 12th. Supper will be served in the basement of the church from 5.30.
